I would like to thank the town council of Appomattox for opposing the sale of beer and wine on Sunday. I voted against this because I am a born-again Christian. Sunday is a day to keep holy. It is the Lord's day.

Rocks news

By CASSIE BALDWIN

We are enjoying the lovely fall weather and trying to prepare for the cold days ahead.

Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Taylor returned on Tuesday night after a vacation in South Carolina and Florida.

Many attended the Five County Fair in Farmville on Monday night.

A very large crowd attended the funeral of Beverly Ann Coleman at Robinson's Funeral Home on Tuesday. She died in Amherst County and not near Danville as stated in the news last week.

Hail fell right much tobacco around on Saturday night recently.

Mrs. Roy Reeser and Debbie Baldwin went to Unico, Tenn. last weekend to see the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Goins and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hamlin went to N. C. last week to get their Aunt Rose who returned with them for a visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ranson returned to Charleston, West Va. after visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Ranson of Pamplin.

Mrs. Erna Roach went back to Richmond last Thursday to see the eye doctor there. She is doing fine.

Rev. A. M. Taylor is conducting an action campaign at Shady Grove Church in Bedford this week. Rev. W. H. Elder filled the pulpit at Rocks on Sunday. A very large crowd came out. Had quite a few visitors. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Wilcox of Roanoke and Mrs. Roy Gowins of Lynchburg and Mrs. Dorothy Garrett of Lynchburg, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Dickerson of Brookneal and Debbie Taylor of Lynchburg. ## Wood: a good source of fuel

With winter just around the corner and fuel costs spiralling continually upward, homeowners are looking for less expensive ways to heat the home. For many, the answer is wood.

The number-one clue to efficient heating with wood is to stock up early on the wood supply so that it will have adequate time to dry out. Wood that is properly seasoned by being air-dried can be as much as 44% more efficient. Experts state that at least six months is needed for proper seasoning.

Top efficiency also depends on wood type; the best types are oak, hickory, locust, apple, birch, and maple. While not rated top but still burn with a fair amount of heating efficiency are holly, pine, cherry, and elm. Hemlock, poplar, spruce and willow are listed as poor.

For those individuals unfamiliar with terms used in wood sales, the following might prove helpful. A cord of wood is four feet wide by four feet high by eight feet long. It is equal to approximately two half-ton pick-up loads. Green wood is freshly cut and has a high moisture content. Lacks radial cracks and gives a low-pitched thud rather than a clap-crack when struck together. Seasoned wood can be identified by the cracks radiating outward from the center toward the bark.

Once the supply of wood is seasoned, be sure to have the stove properly installed. If in doubt as to proper method, better leave it to the experts.

Practice preventive maintenance, have the chimney or flue cleaned each year. Do not place furniture or other objects within three feet of stove. Do not use fireplace or stove as garbage burner.

According to heating experts, a fireplace is 10% 15% efficient. A simple box stove or pot-bellied stove is 25%-30% efficient and requires careful supervision to adjust air intake. An air-tight wood stove is between 45% and 60% efficient.
